Minolta Code 9970-111

Characteristics and Functions

The Minolta Bag MB-1, made of black cordura, is equipped with an adjustable shoulder strap with integrated anti-slip shoulder strap and a handle for carrying by hand. The double snap closure allows you to raise the upper part to access the only large compartment available in the bag where there are 4 separators that can be positioned as desired using the velcro sewn along the 4 sides. The upper flap is provided with two side flaps that prevent moisture from entering from the sides. On the front side, under the upper flap, there is a pocket with a gusset of about 3 centimeters, with a particular semicircle shape, closed by a zip. At the center of this pocket is a blue band with black edging that allows you to recreate the lower part of Minolta's "Rising Sun". The upper part of the "Rising Sun" is instead sewn along the lower edge of the upper flap in order to complete the Minolta symbol when the bag is closed. At the center of the flap, just above the upper half of the "Rising Sun", a black plastic plate is sewn with white silk-screen printing: "MINOLTA" with the rising sun in the "O". On the back there is a document pocket in waterproof material. On the underside there are two large rectangular structures in rubberized plastic that act as support feet for the bag.
